How to Use Wesson Oil

WESSON OIL is a pure delicate vegetable product for use in salad dressings and sauces, for shortening and frying, and wherever an oil or cooking fat of high quality is required. It makes rich, tender cake, flaky pastry and delicious hot breads. For frying it is more wholesome than fats of animal origin, giving a thin golden brown crust which is easily digestible. No special instructions are needed for its use. Follow your favorite recipes and see how good they are when made with Wesson Oil.

Campbell Does Her Bit

Registration Exceeds Gov't Estimate

Patriotic Program Given Tuesday

In a very quiet and dignified manner the young manhood of Campbell community registered for conscription for the overseas war. Everybody realized the solemnity of the occasion and everything was done to make the boys feel at ease. Young ladies served punch and wafers to the boys all day at the registration office and sold to all others for the benefit of the local Red Cross.

Campbell's estimated allotment was placed at 100 registrations which was raised to 116 by actual signatures. Of this number 27 claimed exemptions for various reasons, 70 claimed no exemptions, and 19 were aliens. No enemy aliens were registered and all but one Japanese, were Caucasians. R. G. Archibald was the first to register being on hand a short time before the office was opened.

A well attended patriotic meeting was held in the I. O. O. F. hall in the afternoon.

Rev. W. H. Lloyd acted as chairman. The program opened with all singing "America", followed by invocation by Rev. W. E. Eckles. The High School Glee Club under the direction of Miss Wood sang "The Starry Banner" and "The Battle Hymn of the Republic." An anthem "America" was given by the Methodist church choir.

Mr. Lloyd introduced the speaker of the day, Dr. Kramer of San Jose, who made a most ardent and convincing plea for every man, woman and child to get behind the government in this great war in defense of our much loved country and the great principles for which she is the world's standard bearer, democracy and freedom. The program closed with the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner." After the program the Red Cross local dispensed punch and wafers, and the membership solicitors were busy signing up new members.

Ralston Allison held forth in a tent booth next the registration office and made the sale of $2,200 of Liberty Loan Bonds.

By-and-large, Campbell passed one of its busiest days in history working for the good of her country.

Local and Personal

Nic Dunphy and wife were down from San Francisco for over Sunday.

Geo. S. Robson has joined the army of autoists, having received his new car Friday.

Miss Alice Joy came down from San Francisco to visit her sister, Miss Lucy, and friends.

Mrs. C. F. Rubell enjoyed a pleasant visit with a party of relatives last week. They were: Mrs. Schlatter, Mrs. Bruch, Mr. and Mrs. Schlatter of Leroy, Kansas, and Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Gruber of Priest Valley.

Miss Stella Leviston, who recently finished her freshman year at Mills College arrived last week to be present at the commencement festivities of the High school and visit her Uncle and Aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Phelps.

Prof. and Mrs. T. M. Marshall arrived from Moscow, Idaho, this week for a visit with Mrs. Marshall's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Woodbury. Mr. Marshall will lecture at the University of Colorado summer school during the session.

The Fifth Grade pupils, accompanied by their teachers, Misses Atkinson and Sawyer, were taken to Albright's Hill Saturday by Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Crawford for a day's outing. Picnic lunches were taken and all enjoyed a big time.

Miss Ethel Curry finished a successful term of school at the Summit School last week having held the closing exercises Saturday evening. Quite a party of Miss Curry's Campbell friends autoed up for the evening. Miss Curry returned home Tuesday.

Harold Alford came down from San Francisco to spend the week-end with his aunt, Mrs. B. O. Curry. He has enlisted in the 8th regiment of the Engineers Corps and expects to leave for France shortly. His many friends here wish him all good luck.

Miss Janet Scettrini, who has been the efficient book-keeper for the Geo. E. Hyde & Co. for the past few years will leave shortly to accept a position with the Lecher Garage Co. in San Jose. She is very well pleased with her work here and has made many friends but the new position is more convenient for her. Best wishes of our village go with her.

Cambrian Graduation

The Cambrian graduation exercises were held in the shade of the large eucalyptus and pepper trees in the school yard last Friday morning. The stage was prettily decorated in gold and green, marigolds, broom and ferns being used.

The school, led by the graduates, marched from the building to the stage, where the following program was given.

The school then showered the class with rose petals from cornucopias as they returned to the school.

The members of the class were Leslie Cairns, Melvin Cairns, Caroline Costa, Myrtle Finnemore, Vincent Lopes, Mark Smith, Donna Snapp, Eleanora Steindorf, Harold Townsend, and Leo Walker.

The teachers and district are justly proud of the fact that this is the only two-teacher school, so far, receiving the "standard" award in the county.

The Mothers' Club served ice-cream to all. This club donated receipts from a recent entertainment to the Red Cross fund and acknowledgement for same was read.

The class and teachers, Miss Merna Sawyer and Miss Dorris Carver, enjoyed a noon luncheon under the trees after which the graduates were guests of the teachers at a movie in San Jose.

Dr. and Mrs. E. R. Willis, accompanied the Rev. J. F. Wilson family down from San Francisco Wednesday for a day in the friendly precincts of Campbell ("and get a good lunch," as Brother John says.) Dr. Willis is Superintendent of the Deaconess Home in San Francisco, as well as carrying the weighty responsibility of being uncle to Gov. Willis of Ohio.

It was a happy occasion for Mr. Fabinger, who for several months has been living alone, at his home, on North Central avenue, when all of his children except Mrs. C. D. LeBeur of Hereford, Arizona, and all his grandchildren were with him for the week-end. Misses Mary and Vera and James Fabinger Junior have returned to San Jose. Mrs. Charles E. Burke and daughter, Bessie, will return to their home near Turlock in a few days, while Mrs. Frances Swane with her son, Elwood, will remain for her summer vacation, with her father.

A Talk on the Merits of Del Monte Canned Olives

There are some housekeepers who object to canned olives on general principles. They think that the bulk goods are better. But there is a little misunderstanding in regard to this subject. As a matter of fact, practically all olives that are sold in bulk in first-class stores are canned olives. These olives are sold to the retailer in gallon cans. The retailer opens these large cans for his bulk trade. He finds that olives keep in better condition, and give better satisfaction when handled in this way, than they would if carried in bulk in large quantities.

Therefore whether you buy olives in bulk or in small cans, they are canned olives. Del Monte Canned Olives are carefully selected for color and flavor. They are also unusually rich in oil. Keep a can or two of these olives on your pantry shelves as a reserve stock for emergencies. For a picnic, or a camping trip, they are particularly convenient. Two sizes; 15c, and 20c.

PURITAN WAS EARLY RISER

Setting-Up Bell Rang at Five o'clock in Morning in Boston Two Hundred Years Ago.

The nine-o'clock bell in the evening was an early observance by the Massachusetts colony of the old English curfew bell, says the Boston Transcript. It was rung in Boston previous to 1650 by the town bell ringer, who also had charge of the town clock. A century ago three bells were rung in Boston—at eight in the morning, one in the afternoon and nine in the evening. Two hundred years ago the hours were five in the morning, eleven in the morning and nine at night. At that date the inhabitants were not so prompt in rising as in the previous century, when the bell was rung at 4:30 by the first bell ringer.

The midday bell was not first rung to call people to their noonday meal in Boston. In 1664, "for the more convenient and expeditious dispatch of Merchants, assayers or any other relating to strangers and our inhabitants, it is ordered that the bell shall be rung at a 11 of ye clock every working day to give notice thereof to all persons concerned and that the ringer shall be allowed 12p. per peare by every person that commonly resort thereunto and that they may assemble in the Rone under the Towne house, for the space of one hower for the ends above expressed."

About 1730 the practice of ringing a bell at one was begun, though for some years later requests were made for an eleven o'clock bell at some of the churches, and that practice continued in the last half of the eighteenth century. During that century bells were rung between eight and nine in the morning on the day of a town meeting. On days of rejoicing the bells were rung from six to seven in the morning till noon, and from two to six in the afternoon. The allowances by the town to sextons for daily ringing were, for one ringing $10, for two $20 and for three $30 per annum.

The Civil war did more to abolish the observance of Saturday night as the beginning of Sunday, and finished the falling away of the previous 20 years. To the war must also be credited the abandonment of New England farms, started by the more frequent intercourse between town and country by railroads.

TELLING IT IN CONFIDENCE

Enjoining Secrecy Is Good Way to Relive Laggard Attention, but Sometimes It Is Dangerous.

When you are talking to a man and when his interest in what you are saying begins to lag, a good way to re-suscitate him is to lean forward and say: "What I am going to tell you is in the strictest confidence. You must not breathe a word of it." Ordinarily one who has that said to him will wake up and pay attention to your conversation—at least for a while. What you have really done when you say that to a man is this: You have prevented him from going to sleep on your hands, you have stirred his curiosity, you have advertised!

As a scheme for stimulating interest in your line of talk it is all right. But if what you then proceed to tell him is something that you really want to have kept secret, the plan is a poor one. If you have information that you don't want people to spread around—keep it to yourself, says "Sid" in the American Magazine.

The trouble with a human being who hears a thing in confidence is often this—he can't remember that he heard it in confidence. He remembers the item of news providing it is juicy enough, but the fact that he heard it in confidence is a little like handing a man a jewel in an envelope and at the same time warning him to take as good care of the envelope as he takes of the jewel. Everything goes all right for a while. But by and by the envelope wears out. It is a flimsy sort of thing anyway. And as time comes a time when the envelope, having grown thin and weak and frayed at the edges, slips off or is cast off and nothing remains but the jewel.

How did I acquire all this wisdom on the subject of confidential communications? I will tell you. I acquired it recently in the school of experience. About three months ago I told something in strict confidence to a friend—a man of the highest character, one who would not injure me intentionally for the world. But—and this is what gave me a jar—he went and lost the green envelope, for yesterday he called at my office, carefully closed the door, drew his chair near to mine and in a low voice told me in "strictest confidence" exactly the same thing that I told him!

An Outrage.

Lawyer A—I always said that Bowers was the meanest man alive and now he's gone and proved it.

Lawyer B—How is that?

Lawyer A—He's given away all his property so there won't be a thing left to fight over.

Addresses.

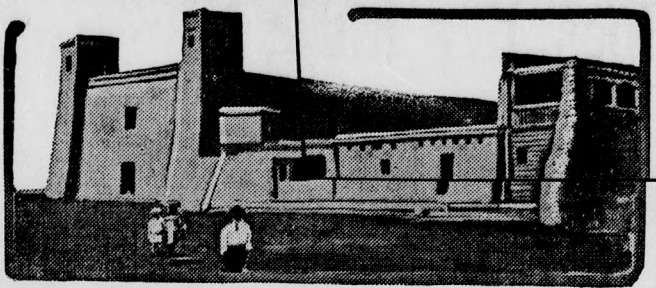

"Flubdub tells me he has published a book of addresses."

"Well?"

"I never knew he made speeches."

"He doesn't. He gets out the city directory."—Judge.

Old Missions of New Mexico

The Church of Acoma.

BEFORE Jamestown was founded, before Puritans began their conquest of New England for the sake of their religious freedom, a century and a half earlier than their wonderful story was begun in California, the Franciscans had entered upon their work for the conversion of the finest race of aborigines in the United States, the Pueblo Indians of New Mexico.

The Pueblos were already far on the road to civilization and were a peace-loving, town-building people, so that it is not strange that progress among them was rapid, even though martyrdom was the lot of many of the earliest missionaries. As monuments to this first Christian work on this continent there are standing today nearly thirty old churches, which are unquestionably the most interesting group of buildings in America, from an antiquarian and tourist standpoint. Yet they are practically unknown to the mass of travelers, even of the more intelligent class, writes Jessie McMillan Strong in the Los Angeles Times.

The chain of missions established by the Franciscans, under the leadership of Padre Junipero Serra, along the mission highway from San Diego to San Francisco, are justly revered and visited annually by many thousands of tourists.

These little-known missions of New Mexico surpass their famous sisters on at least three counts—the New Mexico missions are from 150 to 200 years older than those of California; their history is more varied and most of them are still in actual use by the descendants of the very folk for whom they were originally founded, whereas the environment of those of California has changed until many of the missions have become merely interesting historical landmarks.

The missions of New Mexico are easily accessible. The Ocean-to-Ocean highway, over which motorists pass in constantly increasing numbers, goes directly through many of the towns and villages where the missions are located, while no less than four of them may be seen from the windows of transcontinental trains over the Santa Fe.

In Old Santa Fe.

The tourist to the western coast will be well repaid for the short ride trip from the main line of the Santa Fe railway required to visit the quaint old city of Santa Fe. No other town in the United States can look back upon a history so varied. No other town is so quaint in its composite of medieval ancestry and modern utility.

It was primarily as missionaries to the Indians that the Franciscans accompanied the Spanish conquerors. And it is the little church built in the Indian quarter of Santa Fe, as a mission to them, that today claims the distinction of being the oldest place of worship in the United States. Old San Miguel was built in 1606. In the Pueblo rebellion of 1680 the church was burned, but, so solidly were the massive walls of stone and adobe brick constructed, that only the woodwork was destroyed. Small repair was necessary to make it again fit for use when the reconquest of New Mexico was accomplished by De Vargas in 1693.

These repairs were only temporary. Under the next governor the rebuilding was completed by either automobile or train. It is the largest of the central New Mexican Indian villages, the center of a rich agricultural country. The people are progressive, successful farmers, but have mingled freely with their Mexican neighbors to the detriment of the picturesque quality of their village. Isleta was one of the most important of the early missions. In 1629 there was already built at Isleta a handsome church and convent, ministered to by a resident priest.

When the country was reconquered by the Spanish after the rebellion, it was found that all which could be burned of the old church had been destroyed and the massive walls used for a corral for goats. The church was rebuilt in 1693 and since that time has been in constant use. It is 27 by 110 feet in size and is adjoined by extensive buildings originally a convent, now used as a home for the priest, any quaint customs and legends center around this mission.

City of the Sky.

Acoma, the famous "City of the Sky," the most wonderful town in the United States, is built upon the top of a wind-swept island of rock, rising precipitously 350 feet above the surrounding sandy plain. Its location gave it wonderful defense against the savage tribes that in pre-Spanish times preyed upon the peaceful village Indians. Until very recently its top was reached only by one trail so steep that at places it consisted merely of hand and foot holes in the face of the cliff, where a misstep or a stone rolled from above would hurl a foe to almost certain destruction.

Here the inhabitants made a stout resistance to the Spanish, but were conquered, and the great church, in many ways the most wonderful building in America, was built in 1629. It was partially destroyed in 1680, and rebuilt in 1693. The church is of great proportion, 150 feet long, 40 feet high and very massive. Not only was every particle of adobe used for the walls carried up the ladder-like trail, for there is absolutely no soil on the rock of Acoma, but the great timbers for the roof beams were brought from the 20-mile-distant mountains by men alone, for the horse had not been introduced to New Mexico at that time. Nor is this all, for adjoining the church is a considerable convent, and in front of the church the burying ground, held by a retaining wall along the cliff's rim at places 45 feet high, all made ground, carried up that hazardous trail on the backs of men. Was ever such a monument raised to the zeal of the converts to a new faith?

MIGHT OFFEND HIS "FOLKS"

Militia Colonel's Reason for Ordering
Release of Prisoner Amazes Officer of Regulars.

It is generally believed that the old differences between the regulars and the National Guard have been wiped out long ago, and that the hot and dusty summer weeks in maneuver camps have made the National Guardsman the equal of the regular army man. There may be a lot of truth in this assumption, too, but there is one lieutenant in the regular army who will never believe that the militia will amount to a row of beans until offered by regulars, says a writer on military affairs.

This is partly accounted for by his experience on the Mexican border a few months ago. There had been considerable rowdiness on the part of enlisted men begging and stealing rides to and from town on the running boards of automobiles, and orders had gone forth to stop the nuisance. Consequently, when one large and pugnacious militiaman was arrested by the guard for disobeying the order, this lieutenant of whom I write ordered the pugnacious one immured in the guard tent. The lieutenant happened to be officer of the day and in charge of the situation. The militiaman showed fight, so the lieutenant told the guard to sit on the man's neck, if necessary.

It was just a detail in the day's work. But later on there came marching over to the lieutenant a full fledged colonel commanding the pugnacious militiaman's regiment.

"I understand," he said, "that you have Jim Dumps arrested here for hopping on an automobile running board."

"Yes, sir," replied the lieutenant.

"Well, now," the colonel explained, "you just let him go. His folks and mine are pretty thick, and his being arrested might make it kinder hard for me at home."

And the utterly amazed lieutenant had to obey the orders of a colonel.

WILL AID FARMER

New Methods of Obtaining Nitrates Most Important.

Getting Supply From Air Not Only Big Factor in Nation's Defense But in Enlarging Crops.

The National Geographic society discussing the question of the nitrate supply of the world points out that as a result of the scientific experiments that have been going on for the past two or three years, processes for securing nitrogen from the air, as well as others for securing it from our coal deposits, promise to give us an absolute independence of any other nation in the world for nitrate supplies in the future. The bulletin says:

The much-discussed issue of a future nitrogen supply seems to have been solved by scientists here and abroad since the outbreak of the war in Europe. Heretofore the world has had to depend mainly upon the nitrate beds of Chile for the nitrogen. Many processes for extracting nitrogen from the air where it is to be found in superabundant quantities, since it constitutes about three-fourths of all of our atmosphere, have been developed, but most of them have proved so expensive as to be prohibitive except in times of emergency. Recently, however, there has been discovered, and put in use a new process that is said to reduce the horsepower required to extract a given amount of nitrogen to one-twelfth of the former proportion. The result of this will probably be that in the years to come the world will find a cheaper source of nitrogen right at hand in the air than has ever been found in the nitrate beds of Chile.

It has also been found that through the cooking process big supplies of nitrogen can be extracted from coal. Engineers now estimate that if we were to coke twice as much coal as we have in the past, which would still be less than 5 per cent of our total coal output, the nitrogen that we could secure therefrom would be more than enough to meet all of our needs as a nation, either in peace or in war. In the coking of coal a substance is recovered which is called by the chemist "benzol." The expenses of recovery are not excessively great, and just at the time when our government was announcing that there was no real nitrate deposit anywhere in sight in the United States of really important value, the descriptions of the Haber process of extraction from the air and of the processes for recovery from coal have been most timely.

Not only will the new processes of extracting a bountiful supply of nitrogen from the air and from coal be an advantage to us in the matter of defending our country, and in putting it upon an independent basis from a world standpoint, but it will be an immense advantage to us in our agriculture. The most expensive element that we have to put into the soil to farm profitably is nitrogen. We ordinarily buy it in the shape of nitrate, green bone, or decomposed animal matter, and the farmer's fertilizer bill is always heavy if he wants to produce large crops. A cheap source of nitrogen, such as we might expect from a system of cheap filtration from the air, will enable the American farmer, large as his crops may have been in the past, to produce two bushels of grain where formerly he produced one, and to help feed a rapidly expanding world population.

Great Secret Lost.

At Delhi, in India, stands an ancient iron monument which, though exposed to all weathers, never rusts or decays. Yet it has no protective covering. Here is a secret which would be simply invaluable to the world, which had been discovered by some Indian artificer of old and most unfortunately lost. At a meeting of steel and iron men in London, the chairman said that they could face the future with complacency if they could rediscover the secret. To shipowners alone it would mean a yearly saving of millions. Rust is the great enemy of the steel ship and she has constantly to go into dock to have her hull coated with an anticorrosive solution.—Los Angeles Times.

White Bread.

The experiment has been tried. A dog cannot live longer than 13 days on a diet of white bread. Neither can a man. A dog or a man can live indefinitely and fairly well on a diet of whole wheat bread alone. It is not the best possible diet for continuous service; but it is better than a continuous diet of white bread. All you folks who gorge yourselves on white bread and imagine you are feeding yourselves are, as a matter of fact, starving yourselves. More persons who eat much die of starvation than persons who get nothing to eat at all.

Job for Some Women.

Smith—Do you think that working at high explosives is a fit occupation for women?

Brown—Certainly I do.

Smith—Well, would you let your wife undertake it?

Brown—No; but I'd encourage her mother to go into it!

What One Is.

"Pop, what is an egotist?" asked Sammie, who doesn't seem to know anything.

"An egotist, my boy, is a man who sees in himself a composite of all the virtues he sees in everybody else."

Where Sin Is Unknown

PITCAIRN ISLAND FROM THE SEA

THERE is a place where sin is unknown. There they have no money, so why should they have sin? There they live as one big family; what one man has belongs to his neighbor if his neighbor needs it. There is no capitalist there to get dividends. There is no army to tax the people. There only the Bible rules, and the morality is such that some of the customs which obtain in so-called civilized countries would shock the natives.

It is a little bit of Utopia. You would seek long to find it, for it is only a mere speck away out there in the south Pacific, Pitcairn island, that even few navigators know, because it is out of the regular line of trade. Public attention was drawn to it recently by the presence in this country of Miss Emily McCoy, known as the "princess of Pitcairn."

She isn't a princess in the ordinary acceptance of the term; she's the daughter of J. R. McCoy, president of Pitcairn island. So little strife accompanies elections in this bit of Utopia that the presidency, though nominally elective, is really hereditary. Custom decrees that the president's daughter inherit the office. They call Mr. McCoy "king," but that only means he is the benevolent despot. Being his daughter, it is only natural that Emily McCoy should be called "princess" and that she should be next in line for the regal honors.

Started in a Mutiny.

A glamour of romance hangs about the island and its people from the fact that it was originally settled in 1790 by the mutineers of the English ship Bounty, consisting of Fletcher Christian, the leader of the mutiny, eight Englishmen, six Polynesian men and 12 Polynesian women. It was not until 1808 that the outside world heard of the remarkable colony there.

In 1825 Captain Beechey found here a colony of 63 people under the patriarchal rule of John Adams, the only Englishman left, who had risen to the emergency and trained the growing generation in education, religion and husbandry. They were male and female descendants of Adams, Edwin Young, Matthew McCoy and Matthew ter and it is not operated by a corporation, such as I find so popular in America. It is for all the people, as are the roads and even crops grown by individuals. What one person needs he takes from another, the only obligation being restitution as soon as possible. In fact, it is hardly necessary to take, for the ruling thought of the people is to give and they seek out the wants of others rather than await a demand.

"A stranger visiting the island would find every house open to him. When he left such a thing as payment would be an insult to the people."

"Of course it seems impossible to believe that an island supplies all the necessities of life without work, but that is almost true of Pitcairn. The fruits and vegetables grow almost without cultivation. Goats run wild and so do chickens. To get meat one only has to take down his gun and kill. Guns and ammunition are supplied yearly by the English cruiser which arrives from Tahiti. A few trading vessels bring modern clothing for which arrars root is exchanged. No style in clothing is known, the women wearing loose gowns from the shoulders to the feet and the men ordinary clothing as known in this country. They are worn until their uselessness is apparent."

"Courts and jails are unknown institutions. My father governs over the people as a father over all. Dancing on the island is unknown. The manner of dancing as countenanced in America would not only shock the sensibilities of Pitcairn islanders but those of the Fiji group. American dances would not be permitted in Pitcairn, where modesty is innate. Education is paramount. Teachers have sought admittance on the island for years. All children attend school until the age of marriage. No case of violations of the marriage vow ever have been known."

Menu of the Islanders.

"The foodstuffs consist of sweet potatoes, white potatoes, taro, which is a tuber product, and yams. For meat we have the flesh of goats, which is excellent, and chicken and fish. We have no horses nor cows. But the

THREE GENERATIONS OF PITCAIRN ISLANDERS

Quintal, names with those of George Hunn Nobbs, who later joined the colony, which alone exist today. The colony has been a law-abiding, upright community since its discovery in 1825, when Beechey was astonished to find there a race of people speaking and writing English, living in Arcadian simplicity and devoting themselves to agriculture, religion and music. Only four generations have grown from the founders. Miss McCoy is of the third generation.

Community Without Capitalism.

For 15 years the "princess" of Pitcairn island has been away from the home of her forefathers, in order to perfect herself in the art of nursing and dentistry, and so help her people, who are without medical aid.

"One may live in Pitcairn, but cannot make a commercial living there," she says. "Capital would upset the fundamental principles of a government that has been equitable and prevented crime."

"The Bible was the only book, besides that of Common Prayer, left on the island from the ill-fated ship which brought our forefathers to Pitcairn. The present high order of society there has been the result of living lives guided by the Bible. While the religion of the people as known today is that of the Seventh Day Adventist church, ministers do not have to exhort against sin, for that is unknown."

"The island is only seven miles in circumference and abounds in high mountain peaks. About 195 persons are now living to old age there."

No Sin, No Courts, No Jails.

"The land has been divided into five family divisions. Good roads are maintained by common work of the men. One common well furnishes wa-coconut, which is used for many purposes, furnishes milk to drink. The fruit is also used for shortening, for we use it to make coconut butter. The process of flavoring is achieved by drawing the water off from the nut and then chopping the meat into small pieces. This is moistened with water and put in a cloth and the cloth twisted. The milk or fluid is forced through the mesh of the fabric and kept for use as an extract. The oil of the coconut is used for frying. The green beans on the island are very valuable. They grow almost all the year around and are as tender as French peas.

"One thing in the household line I hope to take back to the women is the knowledge of how to make soap. Their laundering facilities are very limited. About all they have to do it with is water. Before my time they utilized the lye which is indigenous to the soil, but that was later discarded. They have substituted another process, whereby they can create a sort of suds, but this is not to be compared with real soap."

Followed Instructions.

Timothy McShane had been arrested on the charge of stealing a costly gilt chair from the residence of Mrs. Hightone. On being arraigned before the judge, his honor asked Tim what he had to say for himself, to which Tim replied:

"Shure, yer honor, Oi will explain th' hull ting to yez. Oi want to see Mrs. Hightone on bizness fer me boss. Oi rung the bell, and a sarvint kim to th' dure, an' whin I axed to say Mrs. Hightone the sarvint towld me to go into the parlor an' take a chair."

"Well?" said the judge.

"Well, Oi tuk this wan."

SICK WOMAN HAD CRYING SPELLS

Restored to Health by Lydia
E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Enhaut, Pa.—"I was all run down and weak inwardly. I had female troubles and nervous feelings and my head bothered me. I would often have crying spells and feel as if I was not safe. If I heard anyone coming I would run and lock the door so they would not see me. I tried several doctors and they did not help me so I said to my mother 'I guess I will have to die as there is no help for me.' She got me one of your little books and my husband said I should try one bottle. I stopped the doctor's medicine and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It soon made a change in me and now I am strong and do all my work."—Mrs. AUGUSTUS BAUGHMAN, Box 86, Enhaut, Pa.

Why will women continue to suffer day in and day out and drag out a sickly, half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?

Responsibility of the Individual

By DR. SAMUEL G. DIXON
Commissioner of Health of Pennsylvania.

When we talk about a representative form of government and the health of our people, we rarely stop to think of our individual part in the responsibility and efficiency of our government and its every act.

We are all highly critical of the way in which our municipalities and our state and federal departments are conducted, without a blush at our own want of individual responsibility in governmental affairs when it is time to direct them as they should go.

The large majority of us, from the time we get up in the morning and start to look after our domestic affairs and those concerning our business or profession, until the day's end, consider no efforts too great for efficiency, let them be what they may. The large majority of our voters, however, never stop to weigh earnestly the acts of public officials day by day and add up, so that, when it comes time for nominating officials, we may have a record of the men intrusted to take care of our affairs. It is rarely you meet men at the polls who can intelligently analyze the character of those who are to be voted for to take care of our lives, our health, our personal and real property, and to make use of our money, paid over to them in the form of taxes, for the upkeep of those things necessary in higher civilized life.

We should be as careful in voting for public officials as we are in selecting banks in which we propose to deposit our earnings.

The manner in which our government is being conducted should occupy some part of each day of our lives, that we may keep in touch with public life as we do with our every-day affairs, both at home and in business. If we neglect to play our part in our government, it soon becomes empirical, or run by a few, and those who sometimes take but a selfish interest in our affairs.

This same individual indifference toward our duties as members of a representative form of government can be compared with our neglect of our individual health. We rise in the morning and formulate our daily work, looking after the social, business or professional duties; but we give little or no attention to the sanitary condition of our homes and the proper treatment of our physical and mental bodies, to place them on the highest point of efficiency.

Now, in the time of war, let us stop and deliberate and take thought as to the necessity of every individual keeping his body, physically and mentally, up to the very highest state of health, because it is the adding up of the strength of the individuals that represents the strength of our nation.

SOME SMILES

Unconquered.
"Yes," said the veteran of many wars, "I have participated in no less than seven engagements."
"What?" exclaimed the pretty grass widow. "And you are still a bachelor?"

The Horrors of War.
"Mabel is terribly worried."
"What's the matter?"
"She's just got word that a distant cousin she had never heard of has been wounded fighting with the allies somewhere in France. War is terrible when it comes home to you like that."

Lucky Ma!
"Not until I married did I realize how lucky my mother was," sighed the bride.
"Why?"
"Well, she had me to help her wash the dishes and I have to do our dishes all alone."

Praiseworthy.
Rich Uncle—Is it true that you have compromised with your creditors for two cents on the dollar?
Nephew—Yes, uncle, but—
Rich Uncle—But nothing! I doubled my legacy to you when I heard of your cleverness.

A Cold Proposition.
"I understand young Tibborton proposed to that haughty Miss Tookins in the most ardent terms."
"What was the result?"
"About the same result, I imagine, that a person would get by dropping a lighted match on an iceberg."

Defined.
"What is your definition of a philosopher?" asked the Old Fogey.
"A philosopher," replied the Grouch, "is a man who studies and analyzes his own weaknesses and makes other men wonder how he discovered their weaknesses."

Cross Purposes.
Missess—What is your name?
Cook—Mrs. Jenkins, ma'am.
Missess—Do you expect to be called Mrs. Jenkins?
Cook—Oh, no, ma'am; not if you have an alarm clock.

A Mean Man.
"I never thought Smith was a man to desert a woman in an emergency."
"Why, what did he do?"
"Their cook gave notice yesterday and this morning he left his wife crying for help."

Revised Version.
"Been to church, darling?" asked Dorothy's aunt after the service.
"What was the text?"
"Twas 'Am I my brother's housekeeper?" replied Dorothy, proud of her good memory.

PUSH

Sometimes we're apt to stand and knock.
When a little push instead
Would open up a vista new
And we would so be led
To see things as they really are
And change our point of view
From one of shallow prejudice,
And find some work to do.
The pushing is what really counts
To help us on, my friend,
While no amount of knocking here
Will help us gain our end.

What Women Are Doing.

Girl messengers have proved a big success in New Brunswick, N. J. Women school superintendents in Wyoming now number 18.

Miss Margaret Connor is the youngest woman scientist in the government employ.

In Arabia the pay of cooks and house servants runs from $8.30 to $13.20 a month.

Over 18,000 applications for service in France have been received from English women.

Winnipeg, Canada, telephone girls have formed a labor organization to protect their interests.

One Could Get Credit at Post Office in Early Days.

How letters were mailed before postage stamps came into existence is shown by an exhibit of old letters that were sent to Wisconsin towns in the territorial days, now preserved in the state historical museum at Madison, according to the Milwaukee Sentinel.

The old letters had no envelopes, but consisted of sheets folded and sealed. The postage was 3 cents a sheet and an extra charge was made for an envelope. Postage was paid to the postmaster and he marked the letter paid.

It was possible to have an account at the post office, for which the postmaster sent a statement every month. The postage was based on distance sent, as well as the number of sheets.

Although stamps made their appearance in 1847, some letters sent to Blue Mounds, Ore., and Madison as late as 1854 bore no stamps, and were simply marked paid by the postmaster.

New Kind of "Bootlegger."

A clever smuggler was recently caught by the Bavarian police. For two months a man had come three times a week into a small town in Bavaria obviously from the country, stumping along in a wooden leg and going always in the same direction. This aroused the suspicion of the policeman, who eventually arrested him. On examination, the police found the man's hollow wooden leg cleverly packed with 11 pound packets of 'lovejoy' fragrant, golden-yellow butter. The man confessed that for three months he had smuggled this quantity of butter to a dozen or so households, ignoring the butter ticket system. Needless to say there was a dozen or so heavy fines to pay.

Tobacco.

The area devoted to the cultivation of tobacco in the United States in 1915 was 1,368,400 acres. The production of tobacco was 1,060,587,000 pounds, and the farm value on December 1, 1915, $96,041,000.

GEORGE SISLER IS PICKED TO RIVAL COBB WITH STICK

Fielder Jones Calls Star of Browns
Best First Baseman in American League.

Fielder Jones, manager of the St. Louis Browns, expresses the opinion that George Sisler is the best first baseman in the American league. Jones also declares that Sisler is in the same class with Ty Cobb and that at the end of the season the Browns' crack first sacker will have a batting average that will compare favorably with the record of both Cobb and Speaker.

Sisler played 140 games at first base last year. He made 24 fielding errors and his percentage was .985. He was excelled in this respect by Pipp of the Yankees, Gandil of the Cleveland,

George Sisler.

McInnis of the Athletics, Holtzclaw and Gainer of the Red Sox, Judge of the Washingtons and Heilman of the Tigers.

Sisler, however, led all the American league first basemen in batting and base running. He hung up a batting average of .305 and stole 34 bags. Sisler's fielding at times was sensational. In fact, Jones said that he frequently saw Sisler make plays that Hal Chase could not have excelled. Sisler, a left-handed batsman, pounded the best pitchers in the John son circuit and displayed so much natural skill with his war club that Jones predicted last fall that the former University of Michigan star surely would be one of the greatest hitters in base ball history.

Jones' contention that Sisler's value to the Browns equals that of Cobb and Speaker of the Tigers and Clevelanders respectively, is based on the fact that the St. Louis star can play every position on the field, except behind the bat. Sisler is a first-class left-handed pitcher. In fact, Jones had an idea of using him regularly in the box until he discovered that Boston, an experimental first baseman, was weak at the bat.

Sisler has covered second, third and short acceptably and also has done splendid work in the outfield, but his best position is the first corner and he will be stationed there permanently.

Captain Was "Touched."

One captain in the Third regiment, so we hear, has a sixteen-year-old nephew who has been going to the armory and taking the training as an ex-officio guardsman. When enlistment began the nephew obtained his parents' consent to enroll, and by drinking two quarts of water made the necessary weight. Assigned to his uncle's company, he approached the captain while on duty the other night casually as a member of the family and said:

"Uncle, won't you I—"
"Whom are you addressing, sir?" asked the captain, sternly.
"Why, uncle, I just—"
"You must get permission from the sergeant to address me, sir."
The boy went for the permission, got it and returned. Giving the salute, he said: "Captain?"
"Well?"
"Gimme a dime."—Kansas City Star.

Poetry of Breakfast.

"Breakfast is the poetry of eating. Strong with the invigoration of sleep, still animated by the intimacies of soap and water, a man comes to his breakfast like a boy; a boy comes down like winged Mercury, and takes his seat as if alighted on a heaven-kissed hill," as Shakespeare remarked of the planet Mercury. "Breakfast is the handiwork of Lucifer, Son of the Morning, and no doubt caused the arrogance that wrought his fall." H. D. Sedgwick gives this description of the morning meal in the Yale Review.

Growing Old.

Margaret Deland in the Woman's Home Companion discusses the problem of growing old. Among other things, she says: "To hold on to our appreciation of nature, we must spur our dull and lagging memory of beauty; to keep our appreciation of human nature, we must refuse to be laid on the shelf; we must keep up with the procession of human thought. Only so can we see the sweat, the tears and smiles of our fellow creatures. These are the two tasks of middle age; if we perform them worthily, our souls will never grow old."

STOP! CALOMEL IS QUICKSILVER

It's mercury! Attacks the bones, salivates and makes you sick.

There's no reason why a person should take sickening, salivating calomel when 50 cents buys a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tonic—a perfect substitute for calomel.

It is a pleasant, vegetable liquid which will start your liver just as surely as calomel, but it doesn't make you sick and can not salivate.

Children and grown folks can take Dodson's Liver Tonic because it is perfectly harmless.

Calomel is a dangerous drug. It is mercury and attacks your bones. Take a dose of nasty calomel today and you will feel weak, sick and nauseated tomorrow. Don't lose a day's work. Take a spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tonic instead and you will wake up feeling great. No more biliousness, constipation, sluggishness, headache, coated tongue or sour stomach. Your druggist says if you don't find Dodson's Liver Tonic acts better than horrible calomel your money is waiting for you.—Adv.

Of Course, He Could.

The town council of Waddle-cum-Gooseberry had met to decide the all-important question as to whether the town should go to the expense of placing a footbridge across the village stream, or whether the two planks, which had done duty as a bridge ever since the advent of Waddle, were sufficient, says London Ideas.

After an hour's debate it seemed as though the footbridge advocates had carried the day; everyone was agreed that the expense should be incurred to beautify the town, except one—Farmer Heifer.

"Ridiculous!" snorted the farmer at last. "It's nonsense to suggest putting a bridge over that miserable stream. Why, — me, I could jump the — thing!"

"Mr. Heifer!" reproved the chairman, in shocked tones, "you are — er, not in order."

"I know I'm not in order," retorted the farmer. "If I was I could jump twice as far!"

When Not Under Control.

"She has her voice under perfect control, hasn't she?"
"Not perfect control."
"Why not?"
"She talks in her sleep."

Laugh When People Step On Your Feet

Try this yourself then pass it along to others. It works!

Ouch ! ! ! ! ! This kind of rough talk will be heard less here in town if people troubled with corns will follow the simple advice of this Cincinnati authority, who claims that a few drops of a drug called freezone when applied to a tender, aching corn or hardened callus stops soreness at once, and soon the corn or callus dries up and lifts right off without pain.

He says freezone dries immediately and never inflames or even irritates the surrounding skin. A small bottle of freezone will cost very little at any drug store, but will positively remove every hard or soft corn or callus from one's feet. Millions of American women will welcome this announcement since the inauguration of the high heels, if your druggist doesn't have freezone tell him to order a small bottle for you.—Adv.

Moving Men.

Moving men have large hands replete with hairs and very menacing manners. If you see a gang of disorderly desperadoes approaching your neighbor's house do not suppose that it is a group of escaped felons. Your neighbors are going to move. In their boyhood and youth moving men were vandals and defaced public buildings. After serving several jail terms they took up the moving trade, where they could smash and ruin undisturbed by the police. If you plan to move it is well to stay at home and keep a stern eye on the movers. When they are hasty or careless reprove them. Say to one of them, "My good man;" and he will respect you. It is customary for moving men to refresh themselves immoderately between trips so that they will be prepared to let the plane crash down the front steps.—Detroit Journal.

Why Onions Cause Tears.

What we call tears is merely an oversupply of an eyewash provided by nature. The tears are always there, doing their work unobtrusively until something causes an extra flow, too much to be carried away by the little tear trough and aperture with which the eye is provided. In that case the tears roll over the edge of the lower eyelid in a manner that we are all familiar with. Onions contain something that is very trying to the eyes and the tears coming quickly over come the worst of the smarting produced, and save the eyes from injury.

A Novel Surgical Device.

In cases of stricture of the esophagus, which is the canal through which food passes to the stomach and which is situated behind the windpipe, it is important to secure an early diagnosis. Popular Mechanics magazine tells of a new method, reported by a New York hospital physician, which gives a clear outline of malignant strictures and is also a readily applied aid in the treatment of moderate cases. A small length of sausage skin, which is the fibrous coat of the intestine of the hog, is thoroughly washed and treated with formaldehyde and glycerin, then formed into a bag by tying one end with silk floss, the other end being slipped over a rubber tube and tied. The bag, which is now only a string, is then easily swallowed by the patient with the aid of a little water, and a thick bismuth mixture is allowed to flow into it, after which X-ray pictures show the outline of the stricture clearly.

Shrewdness of Mozart.

A recent biographer says of Mozart that the most wonderful fact about him was that he directed his art toward success, without any sacrifice of himself; and his music was always written with regard to its effect upon the public. Somehow it does not lose by this, and it says exactly what he wishes to say. In this he was helped by his delicate perceptions, his shrewdness, and his sense of irony. He despised his audience, but he held himself in great esteem. He made no concessions that he need blush for; he deceived the public, but he guided it as well. He gave the people the illusion that they understood his ideas, while, as a matter of fact, the applause that greeted his works was excited only by passages which were solely composed for applause.

Out of Her Line.

Among her presents was a large bowl of goldfish. Now it happened that her literary tastes were well known, and there was little in the world of literature from the Anabasis to Zwingli with which she was not thoroughly familiar—but goldfish—well, they were out of her line. So in order to familiarize herself with the life, habits, appetite, prejudices and idiosyncrasies of goldfish, so as to be able to assist them in their physical and moral development, she went to a book store.

"I want a goldfish book," she told the young man who waited on her.

A puzzled look overspread his countenance as he asked, "A what?"

"A goldfish book, a goldfish book," she replied.
Suddenly his face brightened as, with a lordly air of condescending superiority, he said: "Oh, yes, I know what you want. You mean Goldsmith's works."—Indianapolis News.

Officers Elected

The annual meeting of the Home and School Club was held Monday afternoon, with a good attendance.

Arrangements were completed for the serving of refreshments Monday evening at the joint session of the trustees of Cambrian, Campbell, Hamilton, Moreland and San Tomas Grammar schools, held at the Campbell school.

The officers for the school year of 1917-18 were then chosen, Mrs. C. W. Toles, president; Mrs. D. H. Cramer, vice president; Mrs. J. G. Burns, secretary; Mrs. W. I. Merrill, treasurer. Mrs. Cramer and Mrs. Merrill were re-elected. The treasurer's report showed $88.33 in the general fund of which $69.40 comprises the piano fund.

Mrs. A. H. Osborne, the retiring president, was given a rising vote of thanks for her untiring labors in behalf of the club the past year, and she in turn expressed her appreciation of the willingness of the members to assist on committees, and especially for the program committee.

The club anticipates another profitable year under the able direction of its new president.

A Big Time

The N. & S. Club of Los Gatos road held another of its pleasant "family suppers" Monday in the left of the J. F. Duncan garage. The room was gay with flags of all sizes, which also adorned the long table. Beautiful baskets of nasturtiums added their gay colorings to the festive scene.

The menu included meat loaf, macaroni, cottage cheese, salad, biscuits, strawberries and cream, cake and coffee.

Later, the company adjourned to the house, where the ever useful "fruit box" provided seats in abundance. Piano solos were given by Olive Randall, Bessie Allenburg, and Harriet Dunphy; duets by Olive Randall and Miss Olga Evans, the Misses Cairns and Rice; a violin number by Miss Cecile Ellison accompanied by Miss Hattie Bohnett; vocal selections by Mr. and Mrs. Warren Shelly and H. C. Smith; and readings by Mr. Shelly and Mrs. Smith.

At the conclusion of the program the company wended their various ways homeward, quite of the opinion that it was "good to have been there."

Consolidation Planned

At a joint meeting of the Trustees of San Tomas, Hamilton, Cambrian Moreland and Campbell school districts Monday evening at the new Campbell auditorium, all trustees, except two, were present to discuss the proposition of consolidating the upper grades. Much interest and enthusiasm were shown by those present and the expression was almost unanimous in favor of such a plan.

Miss Martha Trimble of San Jose normal, one of the best informed in the county on this subject, gave a most interesting and convincing talk on the advisability of consolidation, which was her special study while in the East.

It was decided that petitions calling elections in the several districts be circulated at once in order that, should the proposition prove popular, it could be put into effect next fall. The petitions have been circulated and signed by practically all to whom presented. The law requires signatures of heads of families having children in school.

THE GREATEST AND MOST EFFICIENT THRIFT Inducing propaganda ever instituted by a government is the Liberty Loan Bond investment as planned by our own government officials. Men, women and children may purchase these bonds on the installment plan and with the patriotic sentiment to make the start, a habit of saving will be instilled which will at once be a blessing to the individual as well as a help to Uncle Sam in the hour of stress. A $50 bond will be worth $149.21 at the end of 30 years if you deposit your coupons in the savings bank every six months at regular interest. What a fine investment for a child to work for and what an inducement for further effort in earning and saving. You can't beat it! BUY A LIBERTY BOND.

CAMPBELL IS SHOWING HER COLORS in a most laudable manner in the way she is boosting on the Liberty Loan. Of her allotted sum $30,000, she has all but $6,000 subscribed and it is the hope of the committee based on a canvass that the investment may reach $40,000 or more. Here the real kind of patriotism is manifest. Let us show our country what we can do to help her.

Junior Reception

The yearly reception given by the Junior class of the High school to the Seniors was held Friday evening at the home of one of their number, Gordon Smith of McCoy avenue.

The grounds and driveway were gay with Japanese lanterns, and the class colors, orange and green, were used in the candle shades adorning the tables, which were set out of doors, and in the refreshments served. They also appeared in the house decorations, and the score cards for the games were of the same bright hues.

Bouquets of gaillardia (the class flower) and ferns were presented the ladies, while a single flower served as a boutonniere for the gentlemen.

About fifty guests, including members of the two classes, the faculty and trustees with their wives were present.

A very novel "exam" was held, where the examinees passed from room to room. In the Manual training department the test was for observation and memory, a group of articles being exhibited a moment, to be listed later. The sewing stunt required the dressing of clothes pins in crepe paper to represent a member of the class of '17.

Silhouettes of various students adorned the walls of the drawing room, to be cataloged by the inspectors. A problem, to ascertain the horse power of a donkey, met the class in the physics section. Lastly, general questions pertaining to incidents of school life were presented for solution.

Winona Sawyer and Edward Vandergron having the highest grades were each awarded a box of candy.

Several other stunts were enjoyed, among them a take off of a senior class meeting and a faculty meeting.

Graduation Exercises

The commencement exercises of the Campbell grammar school will be held in the auditorium, Wednesday evening, June 13, at 8 o'clock, when a class of fourteen will receive their diplomas.

The main feature of the program will be a cantata in which eighty voices will sing, under the leadership of Prof. Jan Kalas. The voices will be accompanied by Mr. Jos. Halamicek on the organ, Miss Bozena Kalas, piano, and Miss Ruth Lloyd, violin.

Three presentations are to be made: Library Diplomas by Mr. Kammerer, Graduation Diplomas by Mrs. Waite and a "Standard" Plate and Diploma by Supt. Bateman.

Sophomores Entertained

Miss Marjorie Sprecher, class teacher for the Sophomores, entertained the girls of the class at her home Saturday afternoon, Miss Doris Leviston assisting.

In a guessing contest of "The Things Found on a Penny," Miss Hazel Dunham won the prize, a box of candy. Light refreshments were served at the conclusion of the afternoon's entertainment.

The boys of the class are receiving their recognition today, when, as the Botany class, they are off on a jaunt, provided with lunches packed by the cooking class under Miss Sprecher's direction.

About fifteen of the Guild ladies autographed to Redwood City yesterday to attend the quarterly convention of the Woman's Missionary Union of Northern California.

Mr. Francis Ryan of Washington University has been visiting at the C. H. Whitman home. He came down as wireless operator on the S. S. Queen to San Francisco.

William Lloyd will go to Berkeley this evening, where he expects to be employed during the summer. Charles Lloyd, who is also there spent Sunday here with his parents.

The marriage of Geo. L. Righter and Miss Leah M. Wilson occurred at the home of the bride in El Centro Wednesday. The bridal couple will spend a part of their honeymoon in the Yosemite where they will be joined by Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Righter the 19th inst. George is one of Campbell's young men who has certainly made good in his profession and his many friends here who wish him all happiness.

Pundita Election

Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Chas. Gill entertained Pundita Circle at its last regular meeting before the summer vacation. Plans were made for the banquet to be held Saturday evening, June 23, at the home of Mrs. B. O. Curry, when the husbands and children will be the honored guests. The new officers elected to serve during the next club year are: President, Mrs. Lois Corning; Vice-President, Mrs. James Turner; Secretary-treasurer, Mrs. H. A. Watrous; Chairman of Domestic Science, Mrs. C. A. Day; Chairman of Literature, Miss May Forbes; Chairman of Gardening, Mrs. I. P. Beal; Chairman of Child Welfare, Mrs. W. Nelson.

Mrs. Toles, the retiring president, who has so faithfully and skillfully directed the club in the past year was presented with a huge bouquet of red gladioli and ferns.

The hostess, assisted by "four little maids from school," served dainty refreshments.

Off For Redwood City

The Campbell Athletics will journey to Redwood City Sunday to cross clubs with the fast Redwood team. Our boys gave Redwood a 1-0 tussle. On May 6th and the fans up there have been anxiously awaiting a return game.

Our line-up: Paul, p.; Bradbury, c; Pierce, 1st base; Tramutolo, 2nd base; Rhynes, 3rd base; Lamarra, s. s.; Oliver, ii; Ross, cf; Morton, rr.

Miss Juliette Deming of Berkeley is a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Watrous this week.

Mr. W. W. Farwell of Berkeley spent Saturday and Sunday with his daughter, Mrs. H. A. Watrous. He came especially to use his architectural skill in designing a garage, and planning the gardens which are to adorn the Watrous place.

Mrs. H. W. Young of Coquille, Ore., after a visit of several weeks with her sister, Mrs. C. H. Whitman, has returned to her home. Mrs. Young is the wife of former Senator Young, who is now editor of the Coquille Sentinel. Mrs. Young is always delighted with her visits in Santa Clara valley.

A patriotic mass meeting will be held at the new auditorium Tuesday evening. Manager T. H. Reed of San Jose, one of the most able speakers on the coast, will deliver the address of the evening. Mr. W. E. Johnson, baritone, also of San Jose, will sing and lead in the patriotic songs. Music will also be furnished by the High School Glee Club and Men's Chorus. Plans are being made for a packed house.

Firemen's Show, 15-16.
